It pays to get financial advice

Did you know if you get financial advice you're likely to save significantly more? You're also more likely to broaden your investments and include investments in shares - known as the equity market.

According to a report by ICL, having an adviser increases your chances of saving by almost 10%. The study looked at a number of factors, from income and savings to behavioural traits with some interesting findings:

- People who received professional advice between 2001-2006 had, by 2016, increased their overall wealth by £47,706 more than people who didn't receive advice.
- Those who received advice at both times in the analysis had nearly 50% higher pension wealth than those only advised at the start. In other words, if you gain regular advice you're more likely to stick to a financial plan. That's why, at OneYou, we're with you every step of the way.

So, almost 85% of people are worse off because they didn't seek advice. Will you choose to join the 16.5% who do seek independent financial advice?
